Both header and footer will be on every page

As of now, a total of 10 pages will need to be designed, but there are a lot of reusable components across all these pages (nav/footer/image gallery)

The layout for most pages will be pretty simple one-column layout, but some might be fancier for readability.

Some pages have non-static elements (like the weather page) and those will be hosted on 3rd party websites and/or embedded with iFrames.

Most pages have images galleries, and I'm going to try to include them because they're kind of funny.
